New Construction Subcontracting Networking Session

For The Design Phase of a Proposed New Mobile Federal Courthouse

The U.S. General Services Administration (GSA) Public Buildings Service (PBS) intends to award one contract for Architect-Engineer Design Services for the proposed new Mobile Federal Courthouse. PBS will conduct a Networking Session for interested architect, engineering and/or related firms who may be interested in interviewing with the Short-listed Design Firms as possible consultants (subcontractors) for the Design Services contract for the proposed new Mobile Federal Courthouse.

The contract to be awarded will be a firm-fixed price Architect-Engineer Design Services and the scope will require a full range of architectural, engineering and associated building design disciplines over the course of the design/construction phases, including, but not limited to interior design, landscape architecture, Building Information Modeling (BIM), cost estimating and related consulting services. The Project will include High Performance Green Building (HPGB) technologies and strategies, LEED Gold NC Certification as defined by the U. S. Green Building Council (USGBC). The estimated project construction phase range is $70m - $80m and excludes the cost of the design effort.

On Wednesday, July 25, 2012 @ 1:00-3:00pm, (CST), The General Services Administration (GSA) will conduct a Networking Session for interested architect, engineering and/or related firms who may be interested in interviewing with the Short-listed Design Firms as possible consultants (subcontractors) for the Design Services contract for the New Mobile Courthouse, Mobile, AL. This Networking Session will be conducted in the Alabama Service Center, GSA Public Building Services, 201 Saint Michael Street, Mobile, Alabama 36602.

The U. S. General Services Administration is prohibited by law from attempting to influence the selection or non-selection of consultants/subcontractors. Any contracts which may result from an interview at this session will be strictly private sector arrangements and the U. S. General Services Administration will not be a party to them.

Admission is free. Please bring copies of any brochures, capabilities statements, business cards, etc., that you wish to provide. You are responsible for bringing a sufficient number of copies because copying services are not available.
